Knowledge of Hearing Voices Approach

- Heard of the approach?
- How familiar do you consider yourself to be with it?
  - A bit
  - Moderately
  - Very familiar
Includes a range of sensory experiences, not just voices, that are experienced by the person but not by others.

Known by psychiatry as ‘hallucinations’

Commonly but not always experienced as auditory (internal or external)

Can also be visual, tactile, smell etc

Includes living with distressing beliefs

perceived as separate from oneself ~
Focus of Hearing Voices education:

- Accepting that voices and visions are real
- Normalising these experiences
- Respects expertise of ‘experts by experience’
- Ordinary non-professionalised language
- Encourages an ethos of self-determination
3 phases of voice hearing

1. Startling phase
2. Organisational phase
3. Stabilisation phase

From work of Marius Romme & Sandra Escher.
1. Startling Phase

- Voices start – VH is startled and/or denies them
- Withdrawal leads to isolation
- Some voices may be positive – VH strengthened
- However, with the negative voices, the VH suffers.
2. Organisational Phase

- Select voices
- Initial panic may change to anger
- Apply strategies e.g. talking to voices, ignoring voices, listening to voices
- Important that VH accepts voices and take responsibility for own experience.
3. Stabilisation Phase

- VH gains control over voices
- Acceptance:
  - voices are real
  - voices are part of self
Working with Voices

The aim is to assist people to make sense of their voices and thus find their own way to the Organisational Phase and, ultimately, to the Stabilisation Phase.
Underlying thesis for project

- Being exposed to and supported in the HV approach to voices gives a person the opportunity to
  - engage with their voices and
  - move through the phases of voice hearing to organise and stabilise their experience.

- By educating and supporting voice hearers and their workers in the HV approach, the barrier voices pose to employment will thus be reduced.
Voices @ Work in partnership

1.2 Project Aim

To provide people who hear voices with access to Hearing Voices education and, via collaborative work with other key stakeholders, assist them to manage the distress associated with their experiences in relation to attaining and maintaining employment.
1.3 Project Summary

- Voices at Work is a small-scale pilot project intended to support up to 25 people who hear voices (voice hearers) to overcome the distress associated with their voices in order to engage with the employment process.

- This will be undertaken via Hearing Voices education, small group support and engagement with key people from employment services and support agencies as mutual allies to support voice hearers in the process.

- It is proposed that by offering Hearing Voices education & support to voice hearers, their nominated support people (family, case managers and/or support workers) that clients’ voices will become less of a barrier to employment.
1.6 Project Objectives

- To provide Hearing Voices education to Voices at Work clients, their families/carers, employment service providers and their potential employers.

- To support people who hear voices who are seeking to engage with the employment process in order to obtain and sustain employment.

- Engage with key people from employment services and support agencies as mutual allies to support voice hearers in the process.
1.8 Key Principles for Voices @Work

- Accepting that hearing voices is a valid experience;
- Respecting each person's interpretation and beliefs about their experiences;
- Fostering and enabling safety and wellbeing of all;
- Promoting hope;
- Helping clients to know that they are not alone;
- Believing in each person's capacity to take control of their experience and recover;
- Encouraging people to come together and to feel safe in sharing their experiences and coping strategies;
- Working collaboratively and inclusively with other services to develop knowledge and achieve holistic approaches to recovery;
- Fostering and supporting client independence and empowerment.

- in alignment with the foundational principles of the UK HVN

Voices @ Work from client’s perspective

1. Complete and send in an EOI. Clients can
   - self-refer (website) or

   - support agency.

   Preference is for clients to complete their own EOI form.

5. Do first Feedback Star
6. Receive phone call within a week of training to organise next training date.
7. Process not linear: after Snapshot, can do Discover Recovery (3 hr) seminar or whole day HV training or go straight to ‘Working Voices’ small group.
8. After each training ‘stage’, Feedback Star done.

9. Their psychologist (if atWork client) or support worker is their support through this process – we support the workers through education, the VHs through both education and the small group component.

10. Once client has decided they are finished in the project, they are invited to a debrief session where the Post-Project Survey is completed and future needs are discussed.
11. Should the person choose to leave the project and will not complete the survey, an Exit Interview will be done by either Voices @ Work staff (phone) or their employment case worker/ psychologist/ support worker.

The Interview has two parts: one from the perspective of the client, one from the perspective of the project manager/ worker.
Stage C: Going live!

~ Current status of the project ~

1. Three Expressions of Interest received to date

   - refer their clients
   - formalise the research component
   - assist us in publishing the results.

Evaluation tools currently being submitted to their Governance Committee in order to gain Ethics Approval.
3. Expanding the project

- Current discussions underway to identify potential project partner(s) in the Bunbury region.
- A project manager has been appointed for the region and will work the project in conjunction with Perth staff.
- Ros is to present the project at the Health Dept as part of Mental Health week in October. Senior psychologist from atWork has agreed to co-present.
Engagement with process - small groups
